DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-4, 6-29, and 31-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Roach (2002/0037723).

Regarding claims 1-3, 7, 35, Roach discloses a method for routing communication requests targeted for a user over a network comprising a network entity (serving CI in figure 3) subscribing to presence information of the user (see, for example, figure 2 where the servicing CI accessing HSS for user information); receiving a state of the presence information (see Home Subscriber Server (HSS) that contains Location Server (LS) and Profile Database (PDB) in figures 2-5) of the user and creating routing instruction for routing communication requests (see figure 3; paragraphs 0166, 0167, & 0214).

Regarding claim 4, Roach discloses creating routing script based on the presence information (see paragraphs 0166 and 0319).

Regarding claim 6, Roach discloses receiving one or more notification at the subscribing network entity indicating a change of state of the presence information (see paragraphs 0022-0038 where the presence information can be changed (updated) and paragraphs 0166-0167 where the CI host receives notifications including initial and change of state of the presence information).

Regarding claim 8, Roach discloses registering (see figure 3 and paragraph 0213).

Regarding claim 9, Roach discloses publishing the presence information of the user (see, for example, figure 2 and paragraphs 0142-0167).

Regarding claim 10, Roach discloses publishing the presence information via a presence application server (Home Subscriber Server (HSS)) (see, for example, figure 2 and paragraphs 0142-0167).

Regarding claim 11, Roach discloses subscribing the network entity to the presence information of the user comprises subscribing the network entity to the presence information at the presence application server (see, for example, figure 2 and paragraphs 0142-0167).

Regarding claim 12, Roach discloses receiving a notification at the subscribing network entity from application server indicating a state of the presence information of the user (see, for example, figure 2 and paragraphs 0142-0167).

Regarding claims 13-14, Roach discloses the network includes IP multimedia core network (IMS) and S-CSCF, and the use of Session Initiation Protocol (SIP) (see paragraph 0101).

Regarding claims 15-25, claims 15-25 are method claims that have substantially the same limitations as method claims 1-14. Therefore, they are subject to the same rejection. Claim 15, for example, is a combination of claims 1, 2, 4, and 13. Claims 16 and 17 describe identifying one or more attributes; Roach discloses more than one attribute, for example: a caller identity, a caller domain, and a communication request type (SIP message type).

Art Unit: 2661

Regarding claims 26-29, claims 26-29 are apparatus claims that have substantially the same limitation as method claims 1, 2, 4, and 13. Therefore, they are subject to the same rejection.

Regarding claims 31-34, claims 31-34 are system claims comprise a user equipment (mobile station); a presence server (HSS); a S-CSCF (serving CI) that perform functions described in claims 1-3, 9, and 13. Therefore, they are subject to the same rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 5 and 30 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 11/14/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The applicant argued that Roach fails to teach using user presence information to create routing instructions or routing scripts and that the service profile described by Roach is different than user presence information. This argument is not persuasive because the applicant does not specifically claim what information is included in the user presence information. The claims do not claim the presence information relates to time, location, and/or situation where users are, or are not, willing or able to accept incoming communications as argued by the applicant. In addition, Roach clearly teach users can register and change their location by informing the server of his current location (See, for example, paragraphs 0022-0038). Note that location server (LS) will provide location information.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

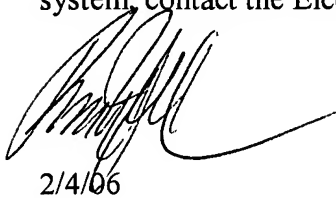

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
